

CITIES FOR ALL AGES:

Land Use Planning and Our Aging Population

Imagine a place where more than 1 out of 4 adults is over age 65, and nearly 1 out of 5 adults is over age 70

– with many of them being non-drivers.

No, it's not a retirement community in the Arizona desert.
It's what Santa Clara County will be evolving into over the next twenty years as the Baby Boom Generation ages.

Is your city prepared for this rapidly approaching "senior tsunami?"

How "senior-friendly" is your city as a place for non-driving seniors to live?

What percentage of the housing units in your city are within walking distance of a supermarket?

Learn what your city needs to do to prepare for this dramatic demographic change.
