Speaker Series Forum #2

Planning for Sustainable Development

Charting the Future under SB 375

Suburban Cities and Infill Development

This is the second in a series of presentations sponsored by the Palo Alto Department of Planning & Community Environment to provide insight and guidance for preparing the Comprehensive Plan amendment.

William Fulton, the author of "A Guide to California Planning," will discuss and initiate a dialogue about how built-out suburban cities are accommodating infill development. Cities throughout the State have been expanding their efforts to incorporate appropriate infill development in response to recent State policy guidance, including AB 32 and SB 375 (the California Sustainable Communities Bill), which focuses on reducing greenhouse gas emissions through transportation and land use planning.

The City Council, Boards and Commissions, and the public are encouraged to attend.

William Fulton, AICP

Principal, Design, Community & Environment Inc. (DC&E)

William Fulton is a professional planner, author, journalist and publisher, lecturer, public offical and highly regarded planning and land use expert on California and national planning trends. He is a former Planning Commissioner in West Hollywood and currently serves on the City Council for the City of Ventura.

City of Palo Alto Council Chambers
Tuesday - February 16, 2010
4:00 - 6:00 pm